3. The entire number of pupils in attendance at the public schools at the end of the year was 1,744. Of these, 1,052 were boys and 692 girls. The average daily attendance for all the schools at the end of the year was 1,455. This gives a mean daily attendance of 22·2 for each school.

4. Of the 1,744 pupils in attendance at the public schools, 454 were above the age of 12 years, and 1,290 were below the age of 12 years.

5. During the past year, 4,291 school books, 1,839 copy books, 41 wall maps, and 23 sets of wall tablets, were distributed to schools. Of these, 2,360 books, 1,001 copy books, and 7 wall maps, were sold at cost price; the rest were attached to the public schools or given to pupils free of charge. The amount returned to the revenue for the sale of school books during the year was £91 2s.

6. The amount actually expended in the department of education for the year 1865 was—establishment charges, £1,136 10s.; grants in aid, £2,681 15s.; books, maps, and apparatus, £300; furniture, £40. The sum total of educational expenditure for the year was £4,158.

7. The revenue returned to the Colonial Treasury for fees paid on the Government schools, and for the sale of school books, for the year, was £543 12s. The actual cost to the State for education was, therefore, £3,615.

8. Of the £300 provided on the Estimates for the year, under the head “new and additional grants and other special services,” £290 was expended. This was devoted to increase of the grants for the schools at St. Andrew’s (Maritzburg), the Berea, Umkomasi, Ladysmith, Victoria, and the Little Umhlanga; and for grants to new schools, namely—Kelly’s Adult Evening School (Maritzburg), Chapel Street School (Maritzburg), Byrne, Durban Evening School, Upper Umzinto, Umtwalume, Esinkombine, Verulam Evening School, Inanda, and Lower Tugela.

9. The sum directly contributed to the public schools from local sources, and in addition to the grants and payments made by Government, was, in round numbers, £3,061 for the year. This sum would be increased to £3,228 by the arrears of fees still due at the High School. This amount, however, insufficiently expresses the support given to education by the general community, because the teachers are in some few instances boarded and lodged by their employers. Free residences are furnished for the teachers in fifteen of the fixed public schools. The school accommodation is furnished by the local communities in all but four instances. In the case of Ladysmith, Addington, Chapel Street (Maritzburg), and two schools at the Little Umhlanga, the school room is found by the teacher.

10. The entire cost of the public schools of the colony, exclusive of board and lodging furnished to teachers, and of the cost of school premises, was £6,597. For this outlay a staff of 72 teachers was maintained and 1,746 pupils were under instruction. This gives an average expenditure of £91 11s. 1d. for each teacher, and of £3 14s. 4d. for each pupil under instruction.

11. Six years and a half ago, when the first Superintendent of Education was appointed in the colony, there were two Government schools in operation, with an attendance of 218 pupils. These schools were maintained at a cost of £428, and returned no fees to the revenue. At the same time there were nine schools which received annual grants in aid from the Government. These schools had collectively an attendance of 258 pupils, and they cost the State £490 per annum, and received about £220 per annum in fees and local contributions.

12. Of the forty-two fixed public schools in operation during the past year, twenty-four had managing committees; and of these committees seventeen held meetings or exercised some practical influence.

ROBERT JAMES MANN,
Superintendent of Education.

Nearly 1,700 Kafirs received instruction, more or less, in these several schools. 120 of these were at work in industrial occupations. 372 females were taught to sew. The cost of the schools to the Government, for the year, was £1,000 for the industrial schools (involving the maintenance of salaried and skilled labor masters), and £909 for the common schools.

Contributions towards the support of the schools are made by natives in ten instances, amounting for the year to £205 12s. 9d.

Superintendent of Education and Visitor of Native Schools.

ACCOUNTS.

All accounts, both public and private, are rendered in this Colony in British money; and biddings at Land and other sales by Auction are made also in British money.

WEIGHTS.

Weights of the Imperial Standard were legalised and brought into use in this Colony under the Ordinance No. 11, 1852.

Among the Dutch inhabitants, and in their commerce with the English, weights of the standard of Amsterdam are occasionally used; the proportion being 92lbs. Dutch to 100lbs. English.

MEASURES.

The standard measures in this Colony are the Imperial; and were legalised by Ordinance No. 11, 1852.

The Dutch inhabitants, however, in disposing of grain, are in the habit of adhering to the old Dutch standard, viz.:

1 Schepel equal to $\frac{82}{107}$ old Winchester Bushel, or $\frac{743}{1000}$ Imperial.

1 Muid „ 4 Schepels, or $\frac{328}{107}$ old Winchester Bushels, or $\frac{2972}{1000}$ Imperial.

1 Load „ 10 Muids, or $\frac{3280}{107}$ „ $\frac{2972}{1000}$ „

The measurement of land in Natal, since it was proclaimed a British Colony, has always been Imperial, viz., by acres, roods, perches, &c.

GENERAL CHARACTERISTICS OF THE YEAR 1865.

In January the mean temperature was one degree above the average. The rain-fall was more than a third in excess of the average. The rain of January should be a trifle under four inches; in this month it was nearly six inches and a half. Two inches and a half fell on the first day of the year. Rain fell on every day from the 1st to the 14th. Rain fell on two days out of three during the month.

In February the temperature was at the average; and the rain-fall very slightly in excess. Thunderstorms about the average.

March was a hot month, with the mean temperature three degrees above the average. Rain-fall an inch and a third above the average. Thunderstorms abundant, three above the average.

April was still hot; the mean temperature two degrees above the average. The rain-fall was slightly above the average. Thunderstorms double the average. Hot winds prevailed three times in the month, which is unusual for this season.

May had nearly the average temperature of the month; and less than half the average rain-fall. The mail steamer Athens was wrecked in a severe gale at Table Bay, on the evening of the 17th. This gale was well marked at Maritzburg, by the movement of the barometer. The mercury stood at 28·13 on the evening of the 10th. From that time it went down steadily until the 18th, when it stood at 27·62 in the afternoon, with the wind blowing violently from the north-west. The force of the storm reached Maritzburg twenty hours after it had fallen on Capetown. The wind was blowing north-east on the morning of the 16th. In the afternoon there was a fierce hot wind from the north-west, with a temperature of 82 degrees. The wind veered to the south-west on the morning of the 17th, and passed to east and southeast in the afternoon and evening. In the morning and afternoon of the 18th a fierce hot wind was again blowing from the north-west, the temperature rising to 85 degrees. In the evening the wind returned to the north-east, and the barometer rose three-tenths of an inch during the night. The barometer went on steadily rising until the morning of the 22nd, when it stood at 28·2 inches, with a pleasant temperature of 62 degrees. The Barometer now continued steady (with only the diurnal fluctuations) for three days, the temperature steadily falling. On the night of the 24th the temperature was 36 degrees. On the night of the wreck of the Athens the night temperature was 57 degrees. This gale at Capetown was distinctly connected with a Maritzburg hot wind, which burst just at the trough of the barometric depression, which was a broad hollow occupying twelve days from apex to apex of the preceding and following air-wave.

The month of June was cool, rather more than a degree below the average; with rain-fall five times in excess of the average. Between the 4th and the 11th 1·28 inches of rain fell at Maritzburg. During the same period nine inches and a quarter fell on the coast; the small coast streams becoming impassable for several days. Rain fell on every day from the 5th to the 11th, amounting to two inches for the day on both the 6th and 11th. The barometer was below 27·9 inches on the 7th, and rose above 28·4 on the night of the 10th, which was twenty-four hours before the termination of the rain-fall. This very unusual burst of winter rain-fall was, no doubt, analogous, in a minor degree, to the great flood of ten years since.

The month of July was warm; with a temperature nearly four degrees above the average. There was a burst of hot wind, with considerable barometric depression, and a temperature of 82 degrees, between the 18th and 20th. This was preceded by a thunderstorm and a slight fall of rain. The rain-fall of the month was a little more than double the average. The night temperature never fell lower than 37 degrees. A very magnificent meteor burst over Maritzburg on the evening of the 5th. This meteor passed from east to west, and was attended by a loud report. It was seen beyond Fort Nottingham, quite up to the base of the Drakensberg. An interval differently estimated between one and three minutes intervened between the flash of light and the sound.

August was warm, the mean temperature being two degrees and a half above the average. The rain-fall was eight times above the average of the month, amounting to an inch and a quarter. The hot wind was a trifle more than the average.

September was a cool month; the mean temperature being a degree below the average. The month, on the whole, was marked by frequent vicissitudes of temperature lying between 42 degrees, and 91 degrees. The rain-fall was nearly double the average of the month. There were nearly three times the usual number of thunderstorms. The hot wind prevailed rather less frequently than usual.

October was a warm month, with a temperature two and a half degrees above the average. There were frequent vicissitudes of both temperature and barometric pressure. The rain-fall amounted to only one-fourth of the average. There were less thunderstorms than is usual. The hot wind was prevalent about the ordinary number of times.

The temperature of November was very slightly above the average. The rain-fall slightly deficient. The thunderstorms considerably below the average.

The temperature of December was very near the proper mean. The rain-fall was three-fourths of the average. Thunderstorms were abundant, giving nearly one for every third day. There was the usual pleasant vicissitude of temperature, the thermometer rising and falling to extreme six times in the course of the month.

Thus the months of January, March, April, July, August, and October, were comparatively warm; and the months of June and September comparatively cool.

The year was comparatively a hot one, the mean temperature of the entire period being a degree and a tenth in excess of the mean of eight years. The rain-fall of the year was nearly an inch in excess of the average for eight years.
